

BIG 4 ROUTE
EXCURSION
TO CINCINNATI
Sunday,
JUNE 21.

$1 Only for the ROUND TRIP. 15

Tickets good only on special train leaving Indianapolis Union Station 7:30 a. m., returning 7 p. m.
Call at Big Four offices, No. 1 East Washington street, 35 Jackson place and Union Station. H. M. BRONSON, A. G. P. A.

Grand Excursion
TO PUT-IN-BAY
FRIDAY, June 19,
Via C., H. & D. R. R.
ONLY $10 ROUND TRIP
Which includes TWO DAYS BOARD at Hotel Victoria. Trains leave Union Station 10:45 a. m. and 6:30 p. m.
For further information call at No. 2 West Washington street.
GEO. W. HAYLER, D. P. A.

"MONON ROUTE"

Michigan City Excursion
Thursday, June 25

Special Train leaves 6 a. m., and returning leaves Michigan City 6:30 p. m.
Visit the Penitentiary, and take a ride on Lake Michigan Steamer.
Two Bands, Restaurant Car and ample accommodations.

MRS. L. SOULSBURY,
Grocer,
Corner Woodburn and Division Street, West Indianapolis.

Chambers's
BOUQUET!
Best 5-cent Cigar.

The Republican Convention is Bulletin in Our Window.

A Summer Hummer In Hats

Menfolks, here are the very light-weight Soft and Stiff Summer Hats—Tans, French Browns, Pearls and other cool colors, with ice on the prices.

The $2 Hats.....$1.47
The $2.50 Hats.....$1.97
The $3 and $3.50 Hats.....$2.47

Boys' Straws: 25c Hats.....19c; 47c Hats.....25c
75c Hats.....47c; $1 Hats.....69c

This is early price-cutting. Early buying means getting the best.

The When

A vote on the pony for your favorite boy with each purchase.

$39 $39 $39 $39 $39 $39 $39 $39 $39 $39

We find that we are largely overstocked on a large line of High Grade Bicycles, and we make the following unheard-of price to close.....

$39 Spot Cash!

"The Townley"

Is the wheel, being a High Grade, Up-to-Date Bicycle of finest design. Large tubing, faultless frame, best of workmanship, wooden rims, fitted with Morgan & Wright quick repair tires.

The Bicycle Bargain of the Year.

OPEN EVENINGS.

Morris Townley

51 W. Market Street.

WE HANDLE TIMMS BICYCLES.

$39 $39 $39 $39 $39 $39 $39 $39 $39 $39

SUNDAY JOURNAL
By Mail, to Any Address,
$2 PER ANNUM

While there may be Some Doubt as to

THE NOMINATION OF MCKINLEY

At St. Louis on a Gold-Riveted, Protective-Tariff Platform—while there may be some doubt as to.

The Nomination of Our Own Gov. Matthews

At Chicago, on a Respectably Gay and Glittering Silver Platform.....

There Is No Doubt

Of the Nomination and Triumphant Election on a thoroughly honest and unequivocal platform—a CHOICE LONG HAVANA FILLER for 5 cents—of

CUBA Cubanola
Cubanola Cubanola
Cubanola Cubanola

Such a candidate would carry Indiana like a whirlwind.

Cubanola Is the Only 5-cent Cigar

In Indiana that has such a filler; more than this Cubanola has the first pick of Sumatra Wrapper.

Ask your dealer for CUBANOLA, and insist upon having CUBANOLA. There is no "just as good."

A. KIEFER DRUG CO.,

INDIANAPOLIS,

Distributors of Cubanola.

SECOND PLACE

ON THE TICKET WILL NOT BE FILLED WITHOUT A STRUGGLE.

Mr. Morton's Prospects for the Vice Presidential Nomination Not So Bright as Two Days Ago.

INDIANIANS NOT YET DECIDED

THEY HAVE NO PARTICULAR CANDIDATE FOR THE VICE PRESIDENCY.

They Are, However, Unanimous in Their Choice of Major McKinley for First Place on the Ticket.

HANNA STILL FOR HOBART

BUT QUIETLY BOOMING EVANS AND THURSTON FOR A PURPOSE.

Senator Foraker in Open Revolt Against McKinley's Manager, and Greatly Worrying the Boss.

PLATT STILL FIGHTING HARD

AND CONFIDENT HE WILL FULFILL HIS THREAT AGAINST HANNA.

His Effort to Poll the Delegations Not Wholly Successful—Governor Morton Not Saying Much.

Special to the Indianapolis Journal.

ST. LOUIS, June 17.—Last night to all appearances Mr. Morton was to receive a big share of Indiana's vote for the vice presidential nomination, but to-night the situation has shifted around as a result of missionary work of the McKinley people and the anti-Platts of New York. Indeed, only one delegate expressed his unwillingness twenty-four hours ago to vote for Morton, but after Mr. Hanna's men came over and called on the delegates, particularly those that are very friendly to the Ohio manager, there was a change of heart. Quite a number of Hoosiers were given to understand that Hobart or Evans would be more acceptable than Hanna than Morton and by this visit not a few of the Indiana delegates have been won away from the Morton standard. Yet there is almost no interest in the vice presidential nomination for the first time in years it is looked on as merely a finishing touch. There is not by far as much interest as there was in the choice of a temporary and permanent chairman of the convention. No delegate seems to be wedded to a particular choice.

There has been some talk of tailing the ticket with Col. Fred Grant, who is present with his wife at the convention and attracting much attention. One delegate from New York came to Hon. R. W. Thompson to-day and asked if he would second the nomination of Colonel Grant. Colonel Thompson gave no assurance of his support, but promised to bring the matter before the Indiana delegation. Immediately after the morning session of the convention the Indiana delegation met and took a poll for the first ballot on the presidential nomination. It was the first time the delegation had considered the matter in a formal way, and, as everybody knew beforehand, decided to cast its thirty votes for McKinley.

At the Minneapolis convention McKinley, by promising to meet him at the next national convention, "Uncle Dick" says he is going to write McKinley a real mean letter when he gets back to Terre Haute and chide him for not keeping his promise. The venerable statesman is again anxious that this is his last convention and the Hoosiers wink again, just as they have done for a number of conventions back, knowing full well that the beloved old man will be on hand again. The next national convention will find him ninety-one years old.

The Indiana members are stiffening on the gold proposition, several of those who favored merely a sound-money declaration concluding that the issue in the convention will be clearly defined between gold and silver and while they may have preferred something akin to the Indiana plank, they will not hesitate a moment in choosing between gold and silver.

H. S. N.

MORTON'S STRENGTH.

Gossip About the Vice Presidential Nomination—Hanna's Preference.

Special to the Indianapolis Journal.
ST. LOUIS, June 17.—The moral effect of the vote taken this afternoon in the convention to order the credentials committee to report the report of the credentials committee is beginning to show itself. All the leaders of the various presidential aspirants opposed to Mr. McKinley are utterly disheartened and their dejection is seriously affecting Mr. Morton's prospects for the vice presidency. Mr. Hanna's prospects are brightening as never before. Mr. Hanna still smarts under Mr. Platt's message of last night that he choked the gold platform down his throat and that he would choke the gold candidate down after the platform. Mr. Foraker's course has also aroused his bitter indignation. The Ohio Senator-elect, not content with dividing the delegation, has now carried his revolt against Mr. Hanna's leadership one step further and it is announced that Mr. Foraker will place the name of Mr. Platt before the convention for the vice presidency. Nothing could suit Mr. Platt's plans better. The Platt men in the New York delegation are debarred from nominating Mr. Morton for the second place, because they are presumed to be sincere in supporting Mr. Morton for the presidency. The Anti-Platts in the delegation are of course opposed to Mr. Morton for the second place.

The accession of Mr. Foraker to the Morton ranks has given the New Yorker's vice presidential boom much standing. He carries with him many of the Eastern McKinley men; for instance, the Maryland delegation, the majority of whom are McKinley men, but all of whom will consider their obligation of loyalty fulfilled when the Ohio candidate is nominated. The Morton men claim for their candidate 41 men on the first ballot, but disinterested observers fail to understand where they will get all the votes. The maximum strength of the men who will not accept orders from Mr. Hanna except on the presidential vote, was shown this afternoon to be so far below even 40 that it does not seem possible that the Morton men have been conservative or even accurate in the poll of the delegations which they made this afternoon. They admit privately that there is great difficulty in arousing enthusiasm on the subject.

The vice presidential nomination will be made to-morrow, but not a dozen delegations have taken the trouble to caucus on the matter. The show of Mr. Hanna's strength this afternoon is accepted as an indication that he controls the situation. Meantime, the fact that the vice presidency cannot yet be truthfully awarded to Mr. Morton, must not, on the other hand, be construed as the acknowledged victory of Mr. Hobart. The New Jersey candidate has always been Mr. Hanna's reserve candidate. Even now he accepts Mr. Hobart with a reservation. Mr. Evans has been encouraged, and the excellent impression which Mr. Thurston made on the convention this afternoon, both by his happy speeches and his excellent administration of his office, has been quickly seized by Mr. Hanna. He is quietly encouraging all the booms—the Hobart boom in the East, the Evans boom in the South and the Thurston boom in the West. He is thus working a boom in every geographical section where the two other booms do not seem to find favor. His figures to-night concede a strength of between 200 and 250 to Mr. Morton. For Mr. Hobart he claims an equal number of votes. Mr. Evans's forces are placed at 250 to 300. He expects two ballots, and on the second ballot he expects Evans and Thurston to transfer their vote to Hobart. The vice presidential situation to-night remains as it has always been. Hobart is Mr. Hanna's candidate, though he is not Mr. Hanna's personal favorite.

At midnight the Hobart feeling is so strong that it seems safe to venture the assertion he will be nominated if conditions do not change too radically within the next twelve hours. There are three reasons to enter the situation at any moment. Thus Senator Davis, of Minnesota, has been duped into sending a telegram announcing his candidacy. There may be more such episodes, but at this time it looks very much like Hobart on the second ballot.

Senator Proctor, of Vermont, tells me to-night that the Vermont delegation will not vote for Morton, nor will New Hampshire. L. G.

THE NEW YORKERS' FIGHT.

Handbills Distributed by the McKinley League of New York.
ST. LOUIS, June 17.—The New York McKinley League created somewhat of a sensation to-day by the distribution about the hotels and on the streets of a letter handbill attacking the Morton vice presidential boom. It was as follows:

"NEW YORK DOX NOT WANT VICE PRESIDENT.
"The McKinley League of the State of New York, the custodian at St. Louis of the signatures of 147,000 Republicans of the Empire State who desire the nomination of William McKinley for President of the United States, having heard that it is the intention of the bosses' combine, working in conjunction with certain treacherous friends of McKinley, to force Levi P. Morton on the Republican national ticket as a candidate for Vice President, does hereby declare against such conspiracy for the following reasons:

"First—That its purpose is to discredit the candidacy of William McKinley and to prevent him from being elected.
"Second—That it is an insult to the friends of Major McKinley in New York.
"Third—That it is a direct and outrageous attack on Governor Morton's managers on McKinley for President of the United States, and the presidential ambition of Governor Morton.
"Fourth—That it constitutes a menace to the Republicans of the Nation in that it drags into presidential politics the party which has just defeated the people of New York and of the United States.
"Fifth—That it is a direct insult to William McKinley in the national convention to join with us, his friends in the Empire State, in opposing the nomination of Levi Parsons Morton, or any other man from the State of New York for Vice President."

At the afternoon session of the convention the Morton men started to circulate a doctored list of the signatures of arms suppressed. It was headed "New York for Morton, Under the Leadership of William C. Platt, and read: 'The Republican organization of New York State has given the following number of active and extinct volcanoes:
Rumor has it that the number of lives lost and the amount of damage done is far in excess of the figures contained in the brief official dispatch. A full official report of this great calamity has been asked for and is expected soon. It is feared that disasters to shipping must also have resulted from the tidal wave.

THREE-CORNERED FIGHT.

Friends of Morton, Hobart and Evans

ST. LOUIS, June 17.—The vice presidential situation bids fair to take the convention out of the featureless rut which has so far marked the sessions. It is to-night as pretty a three-cornered fight as has been seen in a long while and although the Platt adherents with a courage obtained from the leader, who never seems to lack it, claims "that if Morton wants it he can have it," it is nevertheless patent that they feel that Mr. Reed would be the candidate if his consent to take the place was obtained. The New Jersey delegation, with their candidate, Garrett A. Hobart, are campaigning actively for him and have obtained the support of the Miller element. Nor is this latter element dismayed at Mr. Platt's chances. The Evans adherents are not out of the race and a portion of the delegation that is adverse to Platt and Morton are working energetically to-night. The confidence of the Platt men to-night is, however, a trifle discouraging to the more incipient booms because it is thoroughly well known that Mr. Platt will never desert to which side of the vice presidential nomination it would be both unwise and unpolitical for him to do so. The Miller men assert that he will not, under any circumstances, aid Mr. Platt and Platt himself believes this and has no fault to find with Mr. Hanna's course, seeing that he retains his silence as to which side of the New York State controversy he will in-dorse, claiming that until his candidate receives the nomination it would be both unwise and unpolitical for him to do so. The Miller men believe this and has no fault to find with Mr. Hanna's course, seeing that he retains his silence as to which side of the New York State controversy he will in-dorse, claiming that until his candidate receives the nomination it would be both unwise and unpolitical for him to do so.

Mark Hanna, McKinley's manager, still retains his silence as to which side of the New York State controversy he will in-dorse, claiming that until his candidate receives the nomination it would be both unwise and unpolitical for him to do so. The Miller men believe this and has no fault to find with Mr. Hanna's course, seeing that he retains his silence as to which side of the New York State controversy he will in-dorse, claiming that until his candidate receives the nomination it would be both unwise and unpolitical for him to do so.

The McKinley New York State crowd worked hard to-night, and in Cornelius Ellis's room the leaders of at least two-thirds of the State were brought in and argued with. At a late hour to-night the adherents said: "Mr. Morton cannot be nominated for Vice President. He is beaten now and Mr. Platt will not succeed in his plans. We have secured to-night twenty-nine out of thirty votes of Indiana, and nearly all of Illinois. We will not give our figures, but we have the Platt men beaten." At the Platt headquarters it was learned that this vote was claimed as absolutely pledged for Mr. Morton for Vice President if he is beaten in the race for President: Alabama, 10; California, 12;

Connecticut, 12; Florida, 2; Georgia, 6; Illinois, 20; Indiana, 12; Iowa, 25; Kentucky, 5; Louisiana, 10; Maine, 12; Michigan, 11; Minnesota, 10; Mississippi, 6; Missouri, 14; New Hampshire, 5; New York, 25; North Carolina, 5; Ohio, 20; Oregon, 8; Pennsylvania, 14; Texas, 10; Vermont, 4; Virginia, 1; Washington, 2; Arizona, 2; New Mexico, 5; Oklahoma, 6; Alaska, 1; Maryland, 18; To-riety.

GOVERNOR MORTON'S WIRE.

Getting All the St. Louis News and Not Considering the Second Place.

RHINECLIFF, N. Y., June 17.—Governor Morton has spent most of to-day in his library reading the details of the St. Louis convention, and has watched closely the wavering feeling there in regard to his position on the ticket to be nominated. Not one word has fallen from his lips as to his position on accepting the nomination for Vice President should it be tendered to him. His friends at St. Louis, according to himself, have not received his sanction to use their efforts in securing the vice presidential nomination for him, and if they see fit to do it it is done of their own volition. Even if the convention should decide to nominate him as the running mate of the successful presidential nominee without stating that Senator-elect Foraker had consented to be used as a presidential candidate when the presidential nominations are made, and if the convention should decide to accept the vice presidential nomination of the successful presidential nominee without stating that Senator-elect Foraker had consented to be used as a presidential candidate when the presidential nominations are made, and if the convention should decide to accept the vice presidential nomination of the successful presidential nominee without stating that Senator-elect Foraker had consented to be used as a presidential candidate when the presidential nominations are made, and if the convention should decide to accept the vice presidential nomination of the successful presidential nominee without stating that Senator-elect Foraker had consented to be used as a presidential candidate when the presidential nominations are made, and if the convention should decide to accept the vice presidential nomination of the successful presidential nominee without stating that Senator-elect Foraker had consented to be used as a presidential candidate when the presidential nominations are made, and if the convention should decide to accept the vice presidential nomination of the successful presidential nominee without stating that Senator-elect Foraker had consented to be used as a presidential candidate when the presidential nominations are made, and if the convention should decide to accept the vice presidential nomination of the successful presidential nominee without stating that Senator-elect Foraker had consented to be used as a presidential candidate when the presidential nominations are made, and if the convention should decide to accept the vice presidential nomination of the successful presidential nominee without stating that Senator-elect Foraker had consented to be used as a presidential candidate when the presidential nominations are made, and if the convention should decide to accept the vice presidential nomination of the successful presidential nominee without stating that Senator-elect Foraker had consented to be used as a presidential candidate when the presidential nominations are made, and if the convention should decide to accept the vice presidential nomination of the successful presidential nominee without stating that Senator-elect Foraker had consented to be used as a presidential candidate when the presidential nominations are made, and if the convention should decide to accept the vice presidential nomination of the successful presidential nominee without stating that Senator-elect Foraker had consented to be used as a presidential candidate when the presidential nominations are made, and if the convention should decide to accept the vice presidential nomination of the successful presidential nominee without stating that Senator-elect Foraker had consented to be used as a presidential candidate when the presidential nominations are made, and if the convention should decide to accept the vice presidential nomination of the successful presidential nominee without stating that Senator-elect Foraker had consented to be used as a presidential candidate when the presidential nominations are made, and if the convention should decide to accept the vice presidential nomination of the successful presidential nominee without stating that Senator-elect Foraker had consented to be used as a presidential candidate when the presidential nominations are made, and if the convention should decide to accept the vice presidential nomination of the successful presidential nominee without stating that Senator-elect Foraker had consented to be used as a presidential candidate when the presidential nominations are made, and if the convention should decide to accept the vice presidential nomination of the successful presidential nominee without stating that Senator-elect Foraker had consented to be used as a presidential candidate when the presidential nominations are made, and if the convention should decide to accept the vice presidential nomination of the successful presidential nominee without stating that Senator-elect Foraker had consented to be used as a presidential candidate when the presidential nominations are made, and if the convention should decide to accept the vice presidential nomination of the successful presidential nominee without stating that Senator-elect Foraker had consented to be used as a presidential candidate when the presidential nominations are made, and if the convention should decide to accept the vice presidential nomination of the successful presidential nominee without stating that Senator-elect Foraker had consented to be used as a presidential candidate when the presidential nominations are made, and if the convention should decide to accept the vice presidential nomination of the successful presidential nominee without stating that Senator-elect Foraker had consented to be used as a presidential candidate when the presidential nominations are made, and if the convention should decide to accept the vice presidential nomination of the successful presidential nominee without stating that Senator-elect Foraker had consented to be used as a presidential candidate when the presidential nominations are made, and if the convention should decide to accept the vice presidential nomination of the successful presidential nominee without stating that Senator-elect Foraker had consented to be used as a presidential candidate when the presidential nominations are made, and if the convention should decide to accept the vice presidential nomination of the successful presidential nominee without stating that Senator-elect Foraker had consented to be used as a presidential candidate when the presidential nominations are made, and if the convention should decide to accept the vice presidential nomination of the successful presidential nominee without stating that Senator-elect Foraker had consented to be used as a presidential candidate when the presidential nominations are made, and if the convention should decide to accept the vice presidential nomination of the successful presidential nominee without stating that Senator-elect Foraker had consented to be used as a presidential candidate when the presidential nominations are made, and if the convention should decide to accept the vice presidential nomination of the successful presidential nominee without stating that Senator-elect Foraker had consented to be used as a presidential candidate when the presidential nominations are made, and if the convention should decide to accept the vice presidential nomination of the successful presidential nominee without stating that Senator-elect Foraker had consented to be used as a presidential candidate when the presidential nominations are made, and if the convention should decide to accept the vice presidential nomination of the successful presidential nominee without stating that Senator-elect Foraker had consented to be used as a presidential candidate when the presidential nominations are made, and if the convention should decide to accept the vice presidential nomination of the successful presidential nominee without stating that Senator-elect Foraker had consented to be used as a presidential candidate when the presidential nominations are made, and if the convention should decide to accept the vice presidential nomination of the successful presidential nominee without stating that Senator-elect Foraker had consented to be used as a presidential candidate when the presidential nominations are made, and if the convention should decide to accept the vice presidential nomination of the successful presidential nominee without stating that Senator-elect Foraker had consented to be used as a presidential candidate when the presidential nominations are made, and if the convention should decide to accept the vice presidential nomination of the successful presidential nominee without stating that Senator-elect Foraker had consented to be used as a presidential candidate when the presidential nominations are made, and if the convention should decide to accept the vice presidential nomination of the successful presidential nominee without stating that Senator-elect Foraker had consented to be used as a presidential candidate when the presidential nominations are made, and if the convention should decide to accept the vice presidential nomination of the successful presidential nominee without stating that Senator-elect Foraker had consented to be used as a presidential candidate when the presidential nominations are made, and if the convention should decide to accept the vice presidential nomination of the successful presidential nominee without stating that Senator-elect Foraker had consented to be used as a presidential candidate when the presidential nominations are made, and if the convention should decide to accept the vice presidential nomination of the successful presidential nominee without stating that Senator-elect Foraker had consented to be used as a presidential candidate when the presidential nominations are made, and if the convention should decide to accept the vice presidential nomination of the successful presidential nominee without stating that Senator-elect Foraker had consented to be used as a presidential candidate when the presidential nominations are made, and if the convention should decide to accept the vice presidential nomination of the successful presidential nominee without stating that Senator-elect Foraker had consented to be used as a presidential candidate when the presidential nominations are made, and if the convention should decide to accept the vice presidential nomination of the successful presidential nominee without stating that Senator-elect Foraker had consented to be used as a presidential candidate when the presidential nominations are made, and if the convention should decide to accept the vice presidential nomination of the successful presidential nominee without stating that Senator-elect Foraker had consented to be used as a presidential candidate when the presidential nominations are made, and if the convention should decide to accept the vice presidential nomination of the successful presidential nominee without stating that Senator-elect Foraker had consented to be used as a presidential candidate when the presidential nominations are made, and if the convention should decide to accept the vice presidential nomination of the successful presidential nominee without stating that Senator-elect Foraker had consented to be used as a presidential candidate when the presidential nominations are made, and if the convention should decide to accept the vice presidential nomination of the successful presidential nominee without stating that Senator-elect Foraker had consented to be used as a presidential candidate when the presidential nominations are made, and if the convention should decide to accept the vice presidential nomination of the successful presidential nominee without stating that Senator-elect Foraker had consented to be used as a presidential candidate when the presidential nominations are made, and if the convention should decide to accept the vice presidential nomination of the successful presidential nominee without stating that Senator-elect Foraker had consented to be used as a presidential candidate when the presidential nominations are made, and if the convention should decide to accept the vice presidential nomination of the successful presidential nominee without stating that Senator-elect Foraker had consented to be used as a presidential candidate when the presidential nominations are made, and if the convention should decide to accept the vice presidential nomination of the successful presidential nominee without stating that Senator-elect Foraker had consented to be used as a presidential candidate when the presidential nominations are made, and if the convention should decide to accept the vice presidential nomination of the successful presidential nominee without stating that Senator-elect Foraker had consented to be used as a presidential candidate when the presidential nominations are made, and if the convention should decide to accept the vice presidential nomination of the successful presidential nominee without stating that Senator-elect Foraker had consented to be used as a presidential candidate when the presidential nominations are made, and if the convention should decide to accept the vice presidential nomination of the successful presidential nominee without stating that Senator-elect Foraker had consented to be used as a presidential candidate when the presidential nominations are made, and if the convention should decide to accept the vice presidential nomination of the successful presidential nominee without stating that Senator-elect Foraker had consented to be used as a presidential candidate when the presidential nominations are made, and if the convention should decide to accept the vice presidential nomination of the successful presidential nominee without stating that Senator-elect Foraker had consented to be used as a presidential candidate when the presidential nominations are made, and if the convention should decide to accept the vice presidential nomination of the successful presidential nominee without stating that Senator-elect Foraker had consented to be used as a presidential candidate when the presidential nominations are made, and if the convention should decide to accept the vice presidential nomination of the successful presidential nominee without stating that Senator-elect Foraker had consented to be used as a presidential candidate when the presidential nominations are made, and if the convention should decide to accept the vice presidential nomination of the successful presidential nominee without stating that Senator-elect Foraker had consented to be used as a presidential candidate when the presidential nominations are made, and if the convention should decide to accept the vice presidential nomination of the successful presidential nominee without stating that Senator-elect Foraker had consented to be used as a presidential candidate when the presidential nominations are made, and if the convention should decide to accept the vice presidential nomination of the successful presidential nominee without stating that Senator-elect Foraker had consented to be used as a presidential candidate when the presidential nominations are made, and if the convention should decide to accept the vice presidential nomination of the successful presidential nominee without stating that Senator-elect Foraker had consented to be used as a presidential candidate when the presidential nominations are made, and if the convention should decide to accept the vice presidential nomination of the successful presidential nominee without stating that Senator-elect Foraker had consented to be used as a presidential candidate when the presidential nominations are made, and if the convention should decide to accept the vice presidential nomination of the successful presidential nominee without stating that Senator-elect Foraker had consented to be used as a presidential candidate when the presidential nominations are made, and if the convention should decide to accept the vice presidential nomination of the successful presidential nominee without stating that Senator-elect Foraker had consented to be used as a presidential candidate when the presidential nominations are made, and if the convention should decide to accept the vice presidential nomination of the successful presidential nominee without stating that Senator-elect Foraker had consented to be used as a presidential candidate when the presidential nominations are made, and if the convention should decide to accept the vice presidential nomination of the successful presidential nominee without stating that Senator-elect Foraker had consented to be used as a presidential candidate when the presidential nominations are made, and if the convention should decide to accept the vice presidential nomination of the successful presidential nominee without stating that Senator-elect Foraker had consented to be used as a presidential candidate when the presidential nominations are made, and if the convention should decide to accept the vice presidential nomination of the successful presidential nominee without stating that Senator-elect Foraker had consented to be used as a presidential candidate when the presidential nominations are made, and if the convention should decide to accept the vice presidential nomination of the successful presidential nominee without stating that Senator-elect Foraker had consented to be used as a presidential candidate when the presidential nominations are made, and if the convention should decide to accept the vice presidential nomination of the successful presidential nominee without stating that Senator-elect Foraker had consented to be used as a presidential candidate when the presidential nominations are made, and if the convention should decide to accept the vice presidential nomination of the successful presidential nominee without stating that Senator-elect Foraker had consented to be used as a presidential candidate when the presidential nominations are made, and if the convention should decide to accept the vice presidential nomination of the successful presidential nominee without stating that Senator-elect Foraker had consented to be used as a presidential candidate when the presidential nominations are made, and if the convention should decide to accept the vice presidential nomination of the successful presidential nominee without stating that Senator-elect Foraker had consented to be used as a presidential candidate when the presidential nominations are made, and if the convention should decide to accept the vice presidential nomination of the successful presidential nominee without stating that Senator-elect Foraker had consented to be used as a presidential candidate when the presidential nominations are made, and if the convention should decide to accept the vice presidential nomination of the successful presidential nominee without stating that Senator-elect Foraker had consented to be used as a presidential candidate when the presidential nominations are made, and if the convention should decide to accept the vice presidential nomination of the successful presidential nominee without stating that Senator-elect Foraker had consented to be used as a presidential candidate when the presidential nominations are made, and if the convention should decide to accept the vice presidential nomination of the successful presidential nominee without stating that Senator-elect Foraker had consented to be used as a presidential candidate when the presidential nominations are made, and if the convention should decide to accept the vice presidential nomination of the successful presidential nominee without stating that Senator-elect Foraker had consented to be used as a presidential candidate when the presidential nominations are made, and if the convention should decide to accept the vice presidential nomination of the successful presidential nominee without stating that Senator-elect Foraker had consented to be used as a presidential candidate when the presidential nominations are made, and if the convention should decide to accept the vice presidential nomination of the successful presidential nominee without stating that Senator-elect Foraker had consented to be used as a presidential candidate when the presidential nominations are made, and if the convention should decide to accept the vice presidential nomination of the successful presidential nominee without stating that Senator-elect Foraker had consented to be used as a presidential candidate when the presidential nominations are made, and if the convention should decide to accept the vice presidential nomination of the successful presidential nominee without stating that Senator-elect Foraker had consented to be used as a presidential candidate when the presidential nominations are made, and if the convention should decide to accept the vice presidential nomination of the successful presidential nominee without stating that Senator-elect Foraker had consented to be used as a presidential candidate when the presidential nominations are made, and if the convention should decide to accept the vice presidential nomination of the successful presidential nominee without stating that Senator-elect Foraker had consented to be used as a presidential candidate when the presidential nominations are made, and if the convention should decide to accept the vice presidential nomination of the successful presidential nominee without stating that Senator-elect Foraker had consented to be used as a presidential candidate when the presidential nominations are made, and if the convention should decide to accept the vice presidential nomination of the successful presidential nominee without stating that Senator-elect Foraker had consented to be used as a presidential candidate when the presidential nominations are made, and if the convention should decide to accept the vice presidential nomination of the successful presidential nominee without stating that Senator-elect Foraker had consented to be used as a presidential candidate when the presidential nominations are made, and if the convention should decide to accept the vice presidential nomination of the successful presidential nominee without stating that Senator-elect Foraker had consented to be used as a presidential candidate when the presidential nominations are made, and if the convention should decide to accept the vice presidential nomination of the successful presidential nominee without stating that Senator-elect Foraker had consented to be used as a presidential candidate when the presidential nominations are made, and if the convention should decide to accept the vice presidential nomination of the successful presidential nominee without stating that Senator-elect Foraker had consented to be used as a presidential candidate when the presidential nominations are made, and if the convention should decide to accept the vice presidential nomination of the successful presidential nominee without stating that Senator-elect Foraker had consented to be used as a presidential candidate when the presidential nominations are made, and if the convention should decide to accept the vice presidential nomination of the successful presidential nominee without stating that Senator-elect Foraker had consented to be used as a presidential candidate when the presidential nominations are made, and if the convention should decide to accept the vice presidential nomination of the successful presidential nominee without stating that Senator-elect Foraker had consented to be used as a presidential candidate when the presidential nominations are made, and if the convention should decide to accept the vice presidential nomination of the successful presidential nominee without stating that Senator-elect Foraker had consented to be used as a presidential candidate when the presidential nominations are made, and if the convention should decide to accept the vice presidential nomination of the successful presidential nominee without stating that Senator-elect Foraker had consented to be used as a presidential candidate when the presidential nominations are made, and if the convention should decide to accept the vice presidential nomination of the successful presidential nominee without stating that Senator-elect Foraker had consented to be used as a presidential candidate when the presidential nominations are made, and if the convention should decide to accept the vice presidential nomination of the successful presidential nominee without stating that Senator-elect Foraker had consented to be used as a presidential candidate when the presidential nominations are made, and if the convention should decide to accept the vice presidential nomination of the successful presidential nominee without stating that Senator-elect Foraker had consented to be used as a presidential candidate when the presidential nominations are made, and if the convention should decide to accept the vice presidential nomination of the successful presidential nominee without stating that Senator-elect Foraker had consented to be used as a presidential candidate when the presidential nominations are made, and if the convention should decide to accept the vice presidential nomination of the successful presidential nominee without stating that Senator-elect Foraker had consented to be used as a presidential candidate when the presidential nominations are made, and if the convention should decide to accept the vice presidential nomination of the successful presidential nominee without stating that Senator-elect Foraker had consented to be used as a presidential candidate when the presidential nominations are made, and if the convention should decide to accept the vice presidential nomination of the successful presidential nominee without stating that Senator-elect Foraker had consented to be used as a presidential candidate when the presidential nominations are made, and if the convention should decide to accept the vice presidential nomination of the successful presidential nominee without stating that Senator-elect Foraker had consented to be used as a presidential candidate when the presidential nominations are made, and if the convention should decide to accept the vice presidential nomination of the successful presidential nominee without stating that Senator-elect Foraker had consented to be used as a presidential candidate when the presidential nominations are made, and if the convention should decide to accept the vice presidential nomination of the successful presidential nominee without stating that Senator-elect Foraker had consented to be used as a presidential candidate when the presidential nominations are made, and if the convention should decide to accept the vice presidential nomination of the successful presidential nominee without stating that Senator-elect Foraker had consented to be used as a presidential candidate when the presidential nominations are made, and if the convention should decide to accept the vice presidential nomination of the successful presidential nominee without stating that Senator-elect Foraker had consented to be used as a presidential candidate when the presidential nominations are made, and if the convention should decide to accept the vice presidential nomination of the successful presidential nominee without stating that Senator-elect Foraker had consented to be used as a presidential candidate when the presidential nominations are made, and if the convention should decide to accept the vice presidential nomination of the successful presidential nominee without stating that Senator-elect Foraker had consented to be used as a presidential candidate when the presidential nominations are made, and if the convention should decide to accept the vice presidential nomination of the successful presidential nominee without stating that Senator-elect Foraker had consented to be used as a presidential candidate when the presidential nominations are made, and if the convention should decide to accept the vice presidential nomination of the successful presidential nominee without stating that Senator-elect Foraker had consented to be used as a presidential candidate when the presidential nominations are made, and if the convention should decide to accept the vice presidential nomination of the successful presidential nominee without stating that Senator-elect Foraker had consented to be used as a presidential candidate when the presidential nominations are made, and if the convention should decide to accept the vice presidential nomination of the successful presidential nominee without stating that Senator-elect Foraker had consented to be used as a presidential candidate when the presidential nominations are made, and if the convention should decide to accept the vice presidential nomination of the successful presidential nominee without stating that Senator-elect Foraker had consented to be used as a presidential candidate when the presidential nominations are made, and if the convention should decide to accept the vice presidential nomination of the successful presidential nominee without stating that Senator-elect Foraker had consented to be used as a presidential candidate when the presidential nominations are made, and if the convention should decide to accept the vice presidential nomination of the successful presidential nominee without stating that Senator-elect Foraker had consented to be used as a presidential candidate when the presidential nominations are made, and if the convention should decide to accept the vice presidential nomination of the successful presidential nominee without stating that Senator-elect Foraker had consented to be used as a presidential candidate when the presidential nominations are made, and if the convention should decide to accept the vice presidential nomination of the successful presidential nominee without stating that Senator-elect Foraker had consented to be used as a presidential candidate when the presidential nominations are made, and if the convention should decide to accept the vice presidential nomination of the successful presidential nominee without stating that Senator-elect Foraker had consented to be used as a presidential candidate when the presidential nominations are made, and if the convention should decide to accept the vice presidential nomination of the successful presidential nominee without stating that Senator-elect Foraker had consented to be used as a presidential candidate when the presidential nominations are made, and if the convention should decide to accept the vice presidential nomination of the successful presidential nominee without stating that Senator-elect Foraker had consented to be used as a presidential candidate when the presidential nominations are made, and if the convention should decide to accept the vice presidential nomination of the successful presidential nominee without stating that Senator-elect Foraker had consented to be used as a presidential candidate when the presidential nominations are made, and if the convention should decide to accept the vice presidential nomination of the successful presidential nominee without stating that Senator-elect Foraker had consented to be used as a presidential candidate when the presidential nominations are made, and if the convention should decide to accept the vice presidential nomination of the successful presidential nominee without stating that Senator-elect Foraker had consented to be used as a presidential candidate when the presidential nominations are made, and if the convention should decide to accept the vice presidential nomination of the successful presidential nominee without stating that Senator-elect Foraker had consented to be used as a presidential candidate when the presidential nominations are made, and if the convention should decide to accept the vice presidential nomination of the successful presidential nominee without stating that Senator-elect Foraker had consented to be used as a presidential candidate when the presidential nominations are made, and if the convention should decide to accept the vice presidential nomination of the successful presidential nominee without stating that Senator-elect Foraker had consented to be used as a presidential candidate when the presidential nominations are made, and if the convention should decide to accept the vice presidential nomination of the successful presidential nominee without stating that Senator-elect Foraker had consented to be used as a presidential candidate when the presidential nominations are made, and if the convention should decide to accept the vice presidential nomination of the successful presidential nominee without stating that Senator-elect Foraker had consented to be used as a presidential candidate when the presidential nominations are made, and if the convention should decide to accept the vice presidential nomination of the successful presidential nominee without stating that Senator-elect Foraker had consented to be used as a presidential